ARE YOU A MAN OF INTEGRITY?

As part of its outreach into the community, the Huron Women's Shelter plays a leading role on the Domestic Assault Review Team (DART) in Huron County. Led by Co-Chair and HWS staff member Melody Tigani, DART challenged the men on the team to become more engaged in preventing violence against women in Huron County. The result was the Men of Integrity program, now under the leadership of Jeff Sabin, a retired O.P.P officer.

"There has been a shift," says Tigani. "We all know now that we have to work with boys and men and help them become more educated about the issues around violence against women."

Men of Integrity is an educational program which teaches men about the signs and symptoms of woman abuse, so that they may be able to spot any potential abuse happening in the lives of their co-workers, neighbours, friends, and family.

"It's everybody's job to protect someone from getting hurt – that what is going on behind locked doors is everyone's problem – the same way you wouldn't drive past a car accident without stopping and helping, ""

Sabin tours the county making presentations to service clubs and workplaces on how to recognize woman abuse. His goal is to "engage men in this conversation", he says. "It's everybody's job to protect someone from getting hurt – that what is going on behind locked doors is everyone's problem – the same way you wouldn't drive past a car accident without stopping and helping," he says.

At the end of the presentation Sabin asks men to nominate individuals and companies in their communities who are working toward gender equality. These people are then recognized at a ceremony every spring.

MEN OF INTEGRITY PROGRAM LEADER AND PRESENTER, JEFF SABIN

Past winners have been Dave Steckle of Zurich who owns a landscaping company. "Dave believes that everyone should be treated with dignity and respect", says Sabin. Steckle discovered that one of his female employees was being abused by her partner. He stepped in and protected her and her children until they could receive professional protection. This included hiding her car and providing the female employee with an escape plan to a women's shelter.

"We want to recognize men doing good things!" says Sabin.

Another Man of Integrity winner was Phil LaPorte of St. Joseph who owns a window and door business. "Mr. LaPorte believes that everyone should feel safe in a work environment. In his business, gender doesn't decide the job you do," says Sabin. Instead, women are trained for traditionally male dominated jobs.

Over the past two years, 14 men have been nominated for the award. All have been recognized at the annual dinner, which has often been an emotional experience for the men and their families.

"We are telling men not to sit on their hands but instead to take a leading role in preventing and recognizing woman abuse. What these men do in Huron County makes me feel very uplifted," says Sabin.

ONE BILLION RISING

One Billion Rising was celebrated in Goderich on March 8th, International Women's Day. East Street Station held a special event inviting all women from the community to participate in dancing to the original song written specifically for One Billion Rising by Monique Wilson. The dance was led by Nia instructor Ruth Percy. Women attended and also made personal donations to the shelter. Ruth led a second group of enthusiastic participants of staff and patients at Goderich's Alexander Marine and General Hospital.

BREAKFAST WITH SANTA

The 18th annual Breakfast with Santa event and fund raiser last December was a great success once again! Thank you to everyone who attended and enjoyed a wonderful meal, activities and, of course, a visit with the guest of honour! Thanks to the generosity of our donors, volunteers and guests, the 2012 Breakfast with Santa raised a total of $2,300.

Volunteer Kent Gillan provides service with a smile.

INTERNATIONAL DAY OF REMEMBRANCE

On December 6, 2012, friends and community partners of Huron Women's Shelter gathered in Courthouse Park for the International Day of Remembrance. On this day in 1989, Marc Lepine walked into a classroom at Ecole Polytechnique in Montreal, Quebec. He separated the men from the women and opened fire on the women, believing that because women had been accepted to engineering school there was no place for him.

Community partners and friends of all ages gather to show their support.

SECOND STAGE HOUSING PROVIDES SAFE AND STABLE TRANSITION

Once the immediate need for emergency shelter is met, often after about 6 weeks of living at the emergency shelter location in Goderich, abused women with or without children have the option of moving to a controlled entry apartment with rent geared to income where they can continue to receive counselling while working and gaining further independence.

Second Stage Housing in Exeter, Clinton and Goderich offer one, two or three bedroom apartments, which are designed to provide abused women and their children a safe and stable transitional home between emergency shelter and independent living. Apartments are furnished by the tenant, although fridge and stove are provided, and utilities are included in the rent.

Each location offers an outside, fenced-in playground, and an indoor playroom. A counselling office is on site for women receiving counselling. A furnished lounge with access to the backyard is used as a meeting space for groups. There are also laundry facilities on site.

The average length of stay is eight to nine months, however women can stay in the units up to a year, or longer, especially if they are at high risk. While at Second Stage Housing they also learn safety planning and how to obtain a credit profile/history which will allow them to rent in the wider community. Showing others that they paid rent in Second Stage Housing is often a strong first step towards establishing that credit history.

To apply for Second Stage Housing applicants must complete a form which can be found online at: www.huronwomensshelter.com.
